POEM

My last year of school is a time to remember,
I want to work hard right from September.
If I had enough sense I'd learn my lessons every day,
Then revising for exams would be child's play !

I love swimming, and running, and climbing you see,
So my weekends are full of fun things for me.
There is never any time to sit and learn,
But I'll try my best, or I might crash and burn !

My friend is called Sarah. She was born on July 23, 2004, so her zodiac sign is Leo. Her best friend is Paula. She loves going out with her. My friend is good at volleyball and she draws very well. When she was 10 years old she learned how to play the violin but she doesn't mind that. Sarah is mad about sushi and music but she can't bear spiders. Her best year was 2008 because her brother was born that year. She has an elder sister too. Sarah dislikes Spanish classes because she didn't have a good opinion of Mme Tobar. Her

If I were a colour, I'd be blue like the summer sky.
If I were a film, I'd be Star Wars to use the force,
And if I were a day, I'd be Saturday of course !

If I were a piece of clothing I'd be a pair of shorts
Because that's what you wear when you play sports.
If I were a book, I'd be the BFG becausej I love Roald Dahl,

If I were an animal, I'd be a tiny mouse.

If I were a city I'd be London with its London Eye,

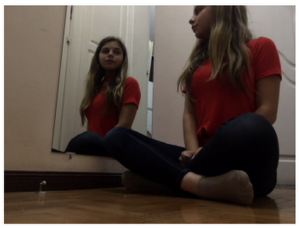
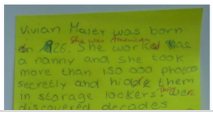
Photo + artist



My photo portrait: I choose the technique of reflexion to do this work because I think it is the best way to do a self portrait, because when you look at the mirror you can see all yourself, your qualities and your defects without effects. I took the photo with my phone in my parents' bedroom. I wanted to have a big mirror, to see all my body in it. The colors of the picture are important because I choose a white background to reveal a part of myself because I am a very colorful person and very open minded.

Vivian Maier



My self portrait got similarities with Vivian Maier's because she used the technique of reflexion too. In his her autobiographic pictures she always showed her camera, in my picture, my

This part of history is not that well known: the migration of Jamaicans to Great Britain. We studied it and imagined the life of one of these immigrants.

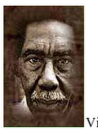
EMPIRE WINDRUSH

Testimonies



Vince Reid

My parents brought me on the Windrush - I had no choice in the matter. They didn't have to - it was obvious they came in search of a better life, better opportunities. It was quite a devastating experience. I was thirteen when I arrived so I wasn't a man, I was a boy. Most of the people on the Windrush were men. I had never been out of Kingston same as for anybody, to go on this big ship, for all those days it was quite an experience.

I went to school in Kings Cross. I never associated with white people in any significant degree, and then school I came across real hostility. I mean to say I had no friends for several years that wouldn't be far from the truth.

I only had friends when I had gone through the Airforce and came out. I joined the Airforce when I was sixteen, what they call a boy entrant an Airforce apprentice. By the time I came out there were more black people in this country.

I am 62 years old now. I have been here 50 years . I would prefer to live here. Well, my family is here, my wife, my grandchildren are here.

I have no significant roots in Jamaica. I have been back to Kingston several times. My circumstances were significantly different to everyone else's, but personally I like England, it's a nice place to live. It's not to say it doesn't have its problems, racism and so on.

Testimony of a Jamaican migrant

Testimony of a Jamaican migrant

My name is Mary Jonson. I went to England in 1948 on the Empire Windrush when I was ten years old. My mother had died a year before so that I had to travel to join my father in London. I was thrilled and worried at the same time. I was very young and it was the first time I had traveled alone. Living in England was very hard, I didn't have so many friends because people discriminated against me. However when I grew up I found a passion for the Jamaican music and now I have decided to stay in England with my children and my husband. Every year we participate in the Nothing hill Carnival. Today I see England as my home. Now I work in a college as a teacher and I am very happy.

Philipe Richard

Hello, my name is Philip Richard and I come from Jamaica. When I was fourteen years old I was forced by my parents to go to the motherland, the United Kingdom. Once there, I worked as a waiter in a restaurant in London. At twenty-five I entered the Army. As a soldier, I got injured while I was taking part in the battlefield. After ten years serving the Army I decided to go back to Jamaica to visit my parents and try to find about a possible job. My parents were very glad when they saw me, but unfortunately, I couldn't find a job. So, I came back to the United Kingdom to start my own business. Then I married a good-looking lady named Elizabeth and we had two children. My marriage made me stay in England forever.

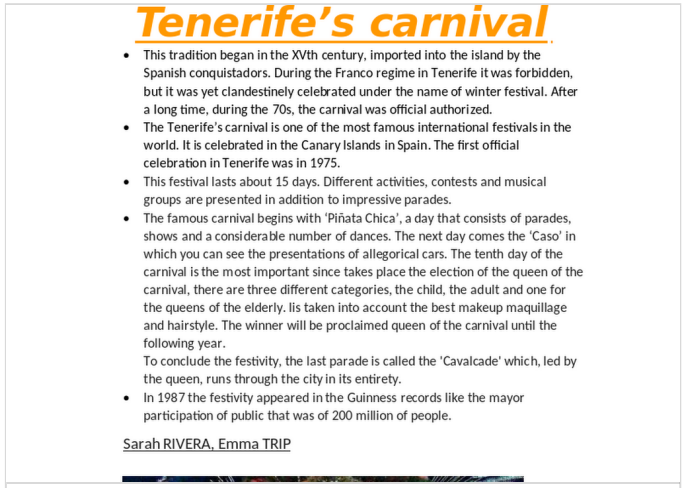
Carnival

Carnivals are popular all over the world. We all chose to present a famous carnival to the rest of the class.

Tenerife carnival



Tenerife's carnival

- This tradition began in the XVth century, imported into the island by the Spanish conquistadors. During the Franco regime in Tenerife it was forbidden, but it was yet clandestinely celebrated under the name of winter festival. After a long time, during the 70s, the carnival was official authorized.
- The Tenerife's carnival is one of the most famous international festivals in the world. It is celebrated in the Canary Islands in Spain. The first official celebration in Tenerife was in 1975.
- This festival lasts about 15 days. Different activities, contests and musical groups are presented in addition to impressive parades.
- The famous carnival begins with 'Piñata Chica', a day that consists of parades, shows and a considerable number of dances. The next day comes the 'Caso' in which you can see the presentations of allegorical cars. The tenth day of the carnival is the most important since takes place the election of the queen of the carnival, there are three different categories, the child, the adult and one for the queens of the elderly. Iis taken into account the best makeup maquillage and hairstyle. The winner will be proclaimed queen of the carnival until the following year.
  To conclude the festivity, the last parade is called the 'Cavalcade' which, led by the queen, runs through the city in its entirety.
- In 1987 the festivity appeared in the Guinness records like the mayor participation of public that was of 200 million of people.

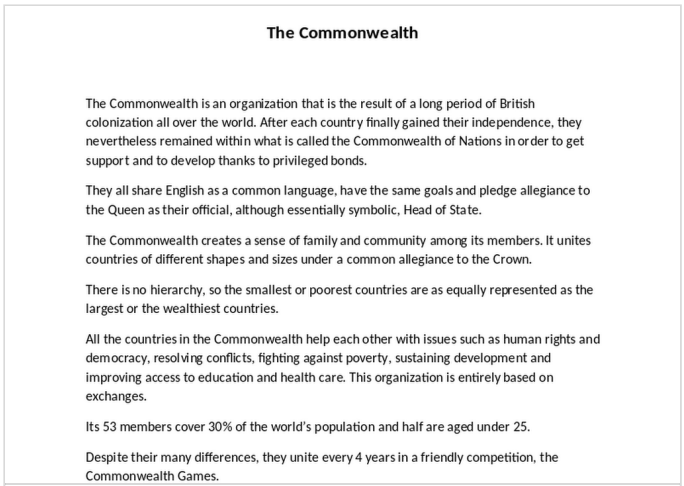
Country of the Commonwealth

After dealing with Jamaican migration, we focused on the other countries of the Commonwealth and, by pairs, we presented one to the class.

The Commonwealth: a definition



The Commonwealth

The Commonwealth is an organization that is the result of a long period of British colonization all over the world. After each country finally gained their independence, they nevertheless remained within what is called the Commonwealth of Nations in order to get support and to develop thanks to privileged bonds.

They all share English as a common language, have the same goals and pledge allegiance to the Queen as their official, although essentially symbolic, Head of State.

The Commonwealth creates a sense of family and community among its members. It unites countries of different shapes and sizes under a common allegiance to the Crown.

There is no hierarchy, so the smallest or poorest countries are as equally represented as the largest or the wealthiest countries.

All the countries in the Commonwealth help each other with issues such as human rights and democracy, resolving conflicts, fighting against poverty, sustaining development and improving access to education and health care. This organization is entirely based on exchanges.

Its 53 members cover 30% of the world's population and half are aged under 25.

Despite their many differences, they unite every 4 years in a friendly competition, the Commonwealth Games.
